To whom it may concern,

I have recently procured the services of McFletch to demolish 3 blocks of flats (encompassing 48 separate dwellings) and associated outbuildings on a site in Oswestry, Shropshire. The site itself was in a built-up area, with residential properties abutting each boundary of the site.

McFletch have performed extremely well, having completed the job in less than half the anticipated time. Due to the nature of demolition, and bearing in mind the residential setting of the site, we received very few complaints about the project and McFletch dealt sensitively with the neighbouring properties during the work. Moreover, they have a flexible attitude towards work and were able to accommodate a number of variations within the compressed programme.

I am happy to recommend the services provided by McFletch – particularly as they were very competitive - and would look to use them in the future for similar projects.

Yours faithfully,
